In the Presence of Royalty

How long has it been since you were reminded that you are royalty? It wasn't until my Walk to Emmaus that I realized that I am the daughter of a King. And that makes me a princess. Who knew?

So if I am a princess, that makes us all princes and princesses. Pretty cool, huh? Okay, so that doesn't really mean that you need to rush out and buy a throne and cape and start renting yourself out to christen boats....unless you really have the time.

The following has been adapted from my fave devotional book, Daily Steps for God Chicks. Since there are men in NIEC, I've also included you but would be known as a God Dude.

We all have times when we hold pity parties or whoa-as-me parties because of our lives, stress, work...whatever has gotten the better of us. When we are in that funk, try to remember your heritage.

The prophet Ezekiel painted an awesome picture of how loved and valued you are. Here is my version of what he said. God is not afraid of the messes that surround you. Maybe you feel unloved. Perhaps you have been abused, abandoned or mistreated in some way and there is no one to lend a hand of compassion to you. No close relationships; no one to trust. God always comes to the rescue. He is right there---ALWAYS! He has the lifeguard ring to throw out to you and bring you back to safe ground.

He steps into the middle of your mess, grabs your hand and causes you to grow, flourish.....to change. He has made an unbreakable covenant with you by calling you His own. He washes your wounds, cleans up your past and anoints you for your future. He has dressed you in His finest royal garments and adorned you with rare jewels. To finish His glorious creation, He places a crown on your beautiful head.

A crown.

Not rags, but royal clothing and a crown! When your father sees you, He sees you with a crown on your head. You are royalty. You are a prince or a princess. Being His daughter or son makes you a princess or a prince.....regardless of what you feel likeregardless of your past.

There is something wonderful that happens in our child heart when we truly realize the truth. Our royal life is not a fairy tale; it is a fact. We are the loved-beyond-measure children of a King.

So go to the closet and pull out your crown. Dust it off and put it on your beautiful head. I am certain you look as good in yours as I do in mine.

New Features Department

In an effort to provide food for your soul as well as food for thought, we are opening up our mailbox to you, our readers. We are looking for articles and stories about the affect your Walk to Emmaus or your Chrysalis flight has had on your life.

Was life the same as before your walk? Were you enlightened to a calling that you had not considered prior to your walk or flight?

We, like you, continue to grow. Share your story or testimony. You don't have to be a professional writer to submit an article. I have it on good authority that the editor will ensure that all submissions will be proof read and neatly entered into the newsletter. Let your voice be heard.
